WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION

“Today, when it seems every young person flirts with photography, the decision to pursue it as a lifetime career is an especially important choice.” - Yousuf Karsh

Throughout his career, Yousuf Karsh, welcomed young people and took the time to discuss photography seriously with them, encouraging their fresh viewpoints and youthful experimentation.

Angelina McCormick's passion and recent journey into this new career will offer young emerging photographers an honest look into their possible career choice and demonstrates the key factors in achieving their preconceived ideas through communication, lighting and composition.

This weekend workshop will demonstrate how to use natural light and professional studio flash equipment to create portraits and self-portraits. Working in small groups and with each other as models, students will learn to communicate with their models to achieve their goals.

This series is suitable for any compact, digital SLR or film camera. All levels of photographic experience are welcome. All essential materials will be provided with tuition. Given the course material a level of maturity and self-direction is required. Youth 15 - 20yrs. This is a basic level course, which teaches fundamentals necessary for some other SPAO courses and workshops. Enrolment is limited to ensure one-on-one attention.
